PANAMA CANAL DEFENSES

A good deal of discussion is going on as to the nature of the defenses intended to protect the Panama canal, re- * marks Goodwin's Weekly.

The most terrible fort that could be built on the isthmus would be out of Panama fever, if it could be confined and at the right moment let lose upon an army. It would in three days work a Senacharib destruction.

The Pittsburg Post is making an effort to have the inscription on the new county and city building in plain English, the language of the Declaration and the Constitution. One man writes in to commend the effort, saying that the building belongs to live people and should be inscribed in the live language of live members. The Post and that contributor know a thing or two and have the plain, common people with them, if not the high brows. Speaking of plain people one is always reminded of Lincoln's oft repeated remark that God must have loved them he made so many of them. And after all the common people, the masses, are the living force in the world today.

A district sealer of weights and measures is compelling icemen in Eugene and Roseburg to carry scales on their delivery wagon and actually give the customer as much ice as he pays for. Thus are the time-honored perogatives swept away one by one-and the iceman, in his season, was the greatest autocrat of all!

WHEN SOME ONE CARES,

When you meet some disappointment, an 'ver feelin' kind o' blue; When yer binns have all got substraction, or some friend has proved when yer testing, praying, struggling at the bottom it the stars.

It is like a benaces—jest to know that some one cares.

Some one who can appreciate one's efforts, when he tries;
Some one who seems to understand—an'so can sympathize;
Some one who, when he's far away, still wanders how he fares—Some one who never can forget—Some one who really cares.

It will send a thrill of rapture through the framework as the heart; It will stir the inner bein' till the teardrops want to start; For this life is worth the livin', when Life is truly worth the hvin', when you know that some one cares, Oh! this world is not all samhinemany days dark clouds disclose: There's a cross for every job-bell, and a thorn for every rose;

But the cross is not so grievous, near the thorn the roseland wears—
An' the clouds has silver finin's—when some one really cares.
—James E. Hilkey.
